He was at Fort Benning recently.

Texan Calls End to Truce With Army

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — John Prather, the 82-year-old rancher whose home spread lies athwart a range where the Army wants to test missiles, ended his uneasy truce with the U. S. government over the weekend.

"I'm staying here until hell freezes over," he said. The Army went to court last summer and took about 25,000 acres of Prather's land for its McGregor missile range. It offered about $200,000 compensation and got legal possession last July. Prather has refused to budge.

Maj. Gen. Robert J. Wood, commanding general at Ft. Bliss, and Prather apparently had worked out a compromise. Gen. Wood said the government would lease Prather's 15-acre home grounds back to him. He could stay there until he dies and need have no fear of being missiled.

Prather said that would be fine as long as he could also lease a narrow corridor a mile and a half long from his home place to the boundary of the missile range, where he still has land. This would permit him to shuttle cattle between his outlying holdings and the water available at his home place.

Gen. Wood was agreeable. But Maj. Luther B. Anderson, Ft. Bliss public relations officer, said yesterday the Corps of Engineers has vetoed the idea.

Body of Negro Man Recovered From Creek

The body of Henry Stewart, 73-year-old Negro, was recovered from a rain-swollen creek in the Columbus area yesterday.

Stewart had been reported missing Friday night by relatives when he failed to return to his home at Columbus. Deputy Sheriff Jack Arnett said. The Deputy said it was believed that Stewart had accidentally fallen into the creek while trying to find his way home after dark.

Rains have forced all creeks in this area out of their banks from time to time.

Man Creates a Perfect World in His Taxicab

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Many people talk of a perfect world. Raymond Roma, a former butler, is perhaps the only one who set out to create a perfect world — inside a taxicab.

"Being in a hurry is no excuse for being either uncomfortable or impolite," says Roma, whose cab — he owns it himself — is a butler's idea of heaven on wheels.

The most unusual single stop you can take in Manhattan is probably the stop the curb into Roma's white and jade cab. You leave instantly a world of noisy hustle and bustle and enter a world of quiet, serenity and unobtrusive courtesy.

As you sink back into the gold and black upholstery, you are startled to note that the inside of the cab, instead of looking like a dried-up hog wallow, is spotlessly

Sheriff Shot by Pair Trying to Enter Bank

YELLVILLE, (AP) — Sheriff Jack Pace was shot twice in the arm last night when he surprised two men trying to break into the Bank of Yellville.

The men escaped in the confusion after the shooting and police apparently lost their trail early this morning.

Sgt. Otto Griffin of the State Police said bloodhounds followed two sets of tracks to a bridge across Crooked Creek but lost the trail there.

Coroner Tank Ray said the first bullet broke Pace's arm, and the second barely nicked the skin. Ray said Pace was in good condition at a Yellville hospital.

Ray said Mr. and Mrs. Howard Roland, who live next to the bank, notified the sheriff about 11:30 last night of noises about the darkened bank building.

Pace, accompanied by Game Warden Dewey King, County Revenue Collector Carl Burlison and Rester Jones went to investigate.

Pace said he saw a man duck behind a barrel at the rear of the bank.

Hussein Returns From Surprise Visit With Saud

By TOM MASTERSON
AMMAN (AP) — King Hussein returned to Jordan today after a surprise flying visit to Saudi Arabia's King Saud.

Apparently the young monarch wanted to find out what was said in his neighbor's conference Saturday with leaders of Egypt and Syria, and to patch up any crack in the Syrian and Egyptian visitors might have opened between him and Saud.

Before taking off for Riyadh yesterday, Hussein rejected a previous government's proposal for diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union. The young ruler has blamed his country's current troubles on international communism, aided by Egyptian propaganda, and security forces have been busy rounding up Communist elements.

Almost a holiday mood prevailed in Amman as the curfew was lifted for eight hours, the longest out-of-doors period since the restriction and martial law were ordered last Thursday. The government announced the curfew would be raised entirely if calm continued.

The Jordan monarch was accompanied to Riyadh by Deputy Premier, Foreign Minister San Rifa'i, Cabinet Chief Bajhat Tahaoui, and Ahmed Kuehmi Sudi, Saudi charged affairs in Amman.

Immediately on his return, the King went into conference at his palace with leading government officials.

Hussein has accused Egypt particularly of stirring up the anti-Western elements in his country who constitute his chief opposition and want to unify Jordan's policy with the pro-Soviet tendencies of the Egyptian and Syrian governments.

Southerners Want Right to Work Injected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Southerners moved in the Senate Judiciary Committee today to try to attach a "right to work" amendment to the administration's civil rights bill.

The amendment was offered by Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) as the committee discussed the bitterly disputed civil rights legislation for the first time since it was approved by a subcommittee March 19.

The "right to work" proposal in effect would outlaw the union shop for other labor contracts requiring a worker to join a union in order to hold his job.

The amendment is strongly opposed by union leaders and by many lawmakers who support the civil rights bill. It also is opposed by the administration. Atty. Gen. Brownell testified it had no place on the civil rights bill.

Chairman Eastland (D-Miss) reported after the closed-door session that his group did not actively consider the civil rights bill today but expects to begin work on it at the meeting next Monday.

The only consideration today, he said, was an explanation of the "right to work" amendment by McClellan.

However, the committee did agree to motion of Sen. Watkins (R-Utah) to make the civil rights bill the "pending business" for its next session with the McClellan amendment first up.

Much of State Drenched With Weekend Rains

By The Associated Press
Monotonous rain clouds swirled over Arkansas again yesterday, drenching a few areas with moisture and unloading a torrent of water on other points.

Hail accompanied some of the showers and thunderstorms.

A downpour in south Arkansas sent Snackover Creek out of its banks, forcing some families at Griffin, near Snackover to evacuate their homes.

However, the U. S. Weather Bureau at Little Rock said no widespread flooding was expected from Arkansas' swollen rivers.

If Little Rock is any yardstick, the current month in Arkansas is one of the wettest Aprils on record.

April rainfall at Little Rock totaled 11.30 inches yesterday. Only in 1913 and in 1927 has April produced as much moisture there, the weather bureau said.

In addition to yesterday's Snackover Creek flood, an afternoon cloudburst at Pine Bluff caused a flash flood in the downtown area. Although water gushed down Main Street for nearly an hour, damage apparently was negligible.

The weather bureau said that rainfall in the 24-hour period which ended at 7 a. m. today included: 2.13 inches at Judsonia (registered on an "unofficial gauge"); Bradford, 1.70 inches; Newport, 1.33; Searcy, 1.30; Buffalo, 1.28; Harrison, 1.07; El Dorado, 28 Arkadelphia, .78; Camden, 12 and Texarkana, 10.

The bureau issued the following river forecast today:

The Arkansas River will fall at Little Rock and above; crest 25 feet at Pine Bluff tomorrow.

The White will fall above Newport and is nearing a crest of 28-29 feet at Newport late today.

The White will rise slowly below Newport, reaching 34 feet at Augusta tomorrow, 26 feet at Georgetown tomorrow, 29 feet at Don Aire tomorrow and 31-32 feet at Camden on Thursday.

The Black will crest at 26 feet at Black Rock tomorrow.

The Onatchita will fall at Arkadelphia and crest 36 feet at Camden Wednesday.

The Little Red will crest near 36 feet at Judsonia today.

Seven persons were hospitalized after the accident Friday night. The most seriously injured was Mr. Bruce, husband of the dead woman, whose condition was reported "fair" over the weekend.

According to City Police the Bruce family reside in a trailer at the Oaks Court. Officers said he is a construction worker currently employed on a highway job near Hope and that the family hadn't lived here but a short time.

Weekend rains pushed the year's total of 26.55 inches or .63 of an inch more than the entire rainfall of 1956. . . and the April total is something of a recent record with 13.92 inches up to 7 a. m. Monday, according to the Experiment Station records.

In July 1945 the station recorded 12.87 inches which is recognized as the modern record up until this year. . . however, the Station also comes up with report of 19.5 inches of rain in July 1849. . . with two full days to go and more rain forecast, this month is not likely to break the 1849 record but it certainly could add to the already established modern record.

Red River at 28.76 Feet, Still Rising

Red River at Fulton was 28.76 feet this morning and still rising, it was announced by Mrs. Inn Logan, recorder. Flood stage at Fulton is 23 feet.

Already out of its banks in many low places the Red is expected to reach 31 feet, but additional rains could send it to 32 feet or more.

Livestock has been moved out of both the Red and Little River bottoms and across the river some families have been forced to move out.

The rising Red naturally forces Little River to rise and the bottom areas are completely flooded. Some cabins on Yellow Creek are reported in danger and the river water is going into Grassy Lake.

Although the rise continues Little River is not expected to go over any roads in the area.

Gambler Is Denied Claim by High Court

By LEON HATCH
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Supreme Court today turned down the appeal of gambler Charles H. Womack of Benton for recovery of $1,075 he claimed he paid to Circuit Judge Ernest Manner of Benton for "protection."

The Supreme Court said Arkansas statutes do not authorize recovery of money "alleged to have been paid as a bribe."

Womack's appeal was another phase of a case which already had resulted in Supreme Court censure of Manner.

Last year the court referred to the state Bar Rules Committee a complaint against Manner based on Womack's charges that he had made political contributions to the judge to avoid prosecution on the gambling charges.

After an investigation, the Bar Rules Committee, in January, reported that Womack, through an intermediary, had made contributions to Manner totaling around $800.

The committee said Manner admitted receiving money he knew came from Womack but denied knowing the amount involved.

The committee said Manner's conduct was "highly reprehensible" and added that the judge deserved the "most vigorous censure."

The Supreme Court gave its formal approval to the committee report. No further action was taken against Manner.

In the suit decided today Manner demurred to Womack's petition for recovery on ground that no cause of action was stated. This view was upheld by Circuit Judge Elmo Taylor of Searcy, who dismissed the suit.

In a unanimous opinion, written by Associate Justice Sam Robinson, the Supreme Court said that "it is firmly established that in a situation such as set out in the complaint the law will not aid either party to the alleged illegal and void contract."

Floods Threaten Anew in Many Points in Texas

DALLAS (AP) — Violent weather focused its fury on southern Texas and brought new flooding today as it raged unabated for the 11th consecutive day across this storm-battered state.

High winds lashed the lush low-lying Rio Grande Valley with thunderstorms that dumped up to six inches of rain. Heavy rains extended over the entire coastal area.

At least nine major rivers that had driven hundreds from their homes continued to spread out of their banks.

The surging Trinity River threatened the Houston area after rising above flood stage at Liberty, 40 miles northeast of Houston.

The Brazos River also threatened to inundate a wide area around Houston within the next two days.

Two miles southwest of Weatherford, in north-central Texas, the Brazos was rampaging at Dennis.

At Victoria, in southwestern Texas, some 25 families were evacuated after the Guadalupe River crept into lowlands. Victoria itself wasn't threatened immediately.

"People in the lowlands have been through this before," said Deputy Sheriff E. R. Weaver of Victoria.

The same applied to most of those driven from low-lying sectors across the state.

High winds raked the area from Raymondville, in Willacy County, to Edinburg, in Hidalgo County, in the Rio Grande Valley. Reports of tornadoes were unconfirmed.

Roads were under water and schools closed in that farming and citrus growing region.

Three persons suffered minor injuries when a small house was blown over near Edinburg.

There were no immediate indications of how much the rain would raise the already swollen Rio Grande. Rains upstream in Texas and Mexico previously had brought predictions of light flooding.

At least 88 highways were closed and hundreds of bridges washed out across the state.

Two persons drowned at Dallas yesterday and a Mexican couple was killed by lightning at Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, across the Rio Grande from Laredo.

At least 11 persons have drowned in floods since the violent weather came to Texas April 19 and several other deaths have occurred on slick highways and at bridge washouts.

Woman Shoots Husband in the Arm

Watson Pipkin of Waldo was shot twice in the arm with a .38-caliber pistol early Saturday night at the home of his estranged wife's parents, east on old Highway 67. His condition was not considered critical.

Deputy Sheriff Jack Arnett said Pipkin's wife apparently had left him and had been at her parents' home about a week. Saturday Pipkin showed up and chased his wife's brothers out of their home with a knife and she got the pistol and shot him, the Deputy said.

Pipkin was arrested on two counts — disturbing the peace and attack with a deadly weapon, the deputy said, indicating he had made bond. No charge was filed against Mrs. Pipkin following the investigation, the Deputy said.

building. The man opened fire when the sheriff called for him to come out.

Pace said the man behind the barrel fired at least three times, but he believes the bullets which struck him were fired by another man on the roof.

Burlison said he fired one shot at the man on the roof. Pace did not fire his gun.

Pace said he caught a glimpse of the man behind the barrel. "He had dark, wavy hair and was wearing a field jacket," the sheriff said.

Camden Man Feels Wife Still Alive

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The husband of Mrs. Maude Crawford, prominent woman lawyer and civic leader who vanished without a track from her Camden home the night of March 2, says he feels she is still alive.

As the investigation of Mrs. Crawford's baffling disappearance went into its ninth week, Clyde Crawford said at Camden that he had no reason to think "anyone would harm or destroy" his 64-year-old wife.

He said he had not heard a word that would indicate the missing woman was all right.

"But I can't help but hope she'll come back," Crawford said wistfully.

It was eight weeks ago Saturday night that Crawford, 63, came home from a movie to find his wife gone. There were no traces of a disturbance and the couples' Dalmatian dog, who was fiercely protective of his mistress, was lying quietly in the living room where he had been when Crawford left. The dog showed no signs of excitement.

Capt. Alan R. Templeton of the Arkansas State Police said at Little Rock Saturday night that an audit of certain financial records which Mrs. Crawford once handled would "continue for a couple of weeks."

Information that the audit was under way came to light recently. Police Chief G. E. Cole of Camden declined comment on its except to say that "officers had no more to go on" than they had when the well-known woman attorney disappeared.

A spokesman for a Camden accounting firm, who asked that his identity be withheld, has said the records were connected with a street improvement district in the south Arkansas town of 12,000. Mrs. Crawford served as a collector for the district for five years ending in 1942.

The spokesman also said that before Mrs. Crawford did work for the district, another collector — whose name was not given — handled funds paid in to retire bonds for the work. The spokesman added that interests which hold bonds issued by the district had requested the audit.

The Crawford case has focused national attention on Camden. Inquiries about the progress of the investigation have poured in from newspapers in many parts of the country.

Mrs. Crawford was a title expert for the law firm of Caughan, McClelland, Laney at Camden. Sen. McClelland (D-Ark.) is an active member of the firm.

Crawford, a cabinet maker, said that when he returned to the Southern plantation-type house near midnight on March 2, lights were on and a television set was playing. He said legal documents on which the wife had been working still were spread on a table.

Crawford said his wife's purse, containing $127 in checks and about $200 in cash lay on a chair in the living room. Her car was parked in the driveway of the house. Sheriff Gover Linebarrier of Camden says the hunt for Mrs. Crawford will go on until her fate is known.

Hundreds of citizens joined with county and city officers and State Police troopers in an intensive search for some trace of Mrs. Crawford in the first days after her disappearance. Linebarrier said yesterday that not a clue was found.

Mrs. Crawford's description has been sent to every part of the United States through police channels.

The Crawfords have no children.

C of C Head Would Clean Labor Methods

WASHINGTON (AP) — President John S. Coleman of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce said today any "cleansing" undertaken by organized labor should go beyond "sweeping out racketeering and violence."

He said labor unions voluntarily should end the secondary boycott, which he called a "ruthless labor blackjack," and should recognize that right-of-work laws "have a moral basis."

"And a full house cleaning job," Coleman added, "should demand that labor quit trying to create an all-powerful monopoly in a country that will not long tolerate monopoly of any kind."

Coleman, of Detroit, bore down heavily on labor matters in a prepared speech keynoting the 45th annual meeting of the Chamber, an organization of businessmen.

He related his discussion to recent disclosures by the Senate committee investigating alleged racketeering in labor and management. That committee has received testimony that some high officials of the giant Teamsters Union misused union funds and allied themselves with underworld elements. It also has heard accounts of labor union violence in some areas.

The AFL-CIO has started action that could lead to ouster of the Teamsters Union from the labor federation.

Coleman, president of the Burroughs Corp., said he does not believe "we wish to see the labor movement suffer from the doings of a few leaders in whom the rank and file had mistakenly placed their trust."

"Labor and management should be friends," he said. "Together, we could advance the well being of the country. It is foolishness to work at cross purposes."

Coleman said business has sought legislation that would treat it and labor "with unswerving impartiality." In this connection, he said, business has lived under the antitrust laws for decades and asked "Why shouldn't labor?"

Coleman noted that labor is "promising to reach for its own 'broom' and sweep clean its house."

Meany Turns Down Proposal From Beck

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany today rejected a proposal by Teamsters Union President Dave Beck for negotiations on Beck's ouster as an AFL-CIO officer in advance of May 20 hearing on corruption charges.

Beck on April 18 asked Meany to name a five-man committee of AFL-CIO Executive Council members to confer with another five-man group named by Beck "for the purpose of discussing my suspension."

Meany replied today that he would not name such a group but would convey Beck's request to labor federation.

Coleman, president of the Burroughs Corp., said he does not believe "we wish to see the labor movement suffer from the doings of a few leaders in whom the rank and file had mistakenly placed their trust."

"Labor and management should be friends," he said. "Together, we could advance the well being of the country. It is foolishness to work at cross purposes."

Coleman said business has sought legislation that would treat it and labor "with unswerving impartiality." In this connection, he said, business has lived under the antitrust laws for decades and asked "Why shouldn't labor?"

Coleman noted that labor is "promising to reach for its own 'broom' and sweep clean its house."

Texarkana Dam Gates Opened

TEXARKANA (UPI) — Gates of the recently completed Texarkana Dam were opened yesterday, discharging water at more than 5,500,000 gallons a minute.

The hourly discharge of water more than equaled the amount which Texarkana uses on an average day.

The gates were opened to capacity to move the terrific load of water served by the watershed.

The 28-member AFL-CIO Council for such action as it desires at the May 20 meeting. Meany noted Beck will have a fully opportunity to discuss his case at that time if he shows up.

The exchange of correspondence between Meany and Beck stems from Beck's suspension by the AFL-CIO Council on March 29 as both an AFL-CIO vice president and a Council member.

The Council acted after Beck refused to answer questions before the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee invoking the Fifth Amendment's protection against possible self-incrimination.

The capacity discharge was prompted by recent heavy rainfall. The watershed includes a 3,000 square mile area bounded on the north by Highway 82 west of Paris, Tex., and on the south by Highway 67 west to eight miles beyond Sulphur Springs, Tex.

Traffic accidents took five lives compared to eight in the previous week. There were no weekend deaths.
Drownings accounted for three deaths, one more than the previous week. Other fatalities resulted from a tractor accident, a fall from a car, a shooting and a stabbing.
Joe Curry, 32-year-old Negro was stabbed to death at El Dorado yesterday during an argument with a woman neighbor. Police said they arrested the woman.
The body of Henry Clay Stewart, 73-year-old Negro, was recovered Saturday from the waters of a rain-swollen creek at Columbus, near Hope. Stewart had been missing since the previous night.

Security Can Also Pose a Big Problem

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK, (AP) — National security can be a business problem too.
How government policy can curb the law of supply and demand to set the pattern of production and price is shown neatly today in problems facing two industries — oil and metals.
On the oil side, the way around, the conduct of business these days some times must be tailored to fit the profit system of private business into government's domestic and international aims.
The question in oil, put by President Eisenhower, is how much can be imported now without impeding future national security.
The question in metals, posed by other government officials, is whether it's time to pull the price floor from under metals. The floor is fashioned from purchases for the defense stockpile. The aim is partly to have needed metals at hand for an emergency, partly to encourage search for and development of reserves.
Strictly from the business point of view are these other questions: What will these decisions do to prices, production, employment, domestic and world markets? A businessman today must know at a steady conservative pace. If you care to discuss anything, he can talk to you in three languages — English, French or German.

If you murmur, "Gee, I wish I'd shaved," Roma silently hands you back an electric shaver. With perfect tact he explains that he keeps two shaving heads for the razor, and that while one is in use the other is being sterilized in a solution in the trunk of the cab.

When you have finished, he hands you a toilet kit with after-shave lotion and talcum powder.

After you leave his cab, Roma, before looking for another passenger, puts the other head in the razor, cleans out the shaver, and sweeps the imported English rubber door-to-door mat on the floor.

Why does Roma go to all this trouble to please casual passengers? Largely because he likes to see people comfortable, and it pleases him still to practice the little courtesies he learned during 7 1/2 years of butlering here and in Paris for a French general, a perfume manufacturer and a concert pianist.

It isn't all free to Roma himself. When he went to the Remington people with his plan to put in a Home-Auto shaver, they installed one for nothing.

But it cost him $710 for the air-conditioning, and the smokes, newspapers and refreshments he provides take a few dollars each week from his modest salary.

Does it pay off in extra tips from pleased passengers, many of whom have written him testimonials?

"No," said Roma, who is always impeccably attired and would almost rather commit harikiri than show up for work without his necktie. "I don't get any more tips. But this doesn't disappoint me, as that is not my purpose."

"The other drivers say I must either be a millionaire—or crazy—to put a cab like this on the streets."

"I can say with certainty that I am not a millionaire. But you can be a gentleman in this world—no matter what you do for a living."

"In this country we have everything anyone can ask for except, sometimes, good manners. We can have them too, if we choose."

DOROTHY DIX

He Moved In — But Balks at Marriage

Dear Dorothy Dix: Eight months ago I met a man who is temporarily working in my town. We were attracted to each other, and for five months have been living as man and wife. He'll be going home soon and hasn't asked me to marry him, though he says he won't leave me here. He's wonderful around the house, does repairs, helps with cooking and really seems to enjoy it.

I'm sure if he didn't love me he would have gone away before this. I know I adore him, but how can I make him see marriage as something beautiful? When I mention it to him, he just says he doesn't like orange blossoms.

Dear Val: Many men regard orange blossoms as a parasitic plant that tightens its grip on poor bachelors until there's no breath or freedom left in them. Apparently your friend is one of these. Or, has it occurred to you that he may already be unimpressed in those fragrant blossoms? Have you inquired about a possible wife and kiddies back home? After all, you only know him three months before making him a member of the family. A position that is illegal and immoral can never be satisfying. Don't continue it. Take a firm stand for a marriage certificate.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I went with a divorced man for two years. He said he had never received love or companionship from his wife, yet last month he remarried her. I broke off with him. Now I miss him very much. Perhaps I was too hasty. Did I do right?

Dear Frilla: This may be news to you, but you had no choice. You were jilted, my girl.

Dear Dorothy Dix I'm very much in love with Eva. Her one fault is a habit of screaming at such singers as Elvis and Pat. I protest every time she does it, but the screaming goes on. — GEORGE

Ike Planning Strategy on Budget Cuts

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — President Eisenhower today charted battle strategy against a House-approved 47-million-dollar budget cut he says would prove "harmful to the United States in conduct of foreign affairs."
The President yesterday voiced opposition to a reduction by the House in the $227,700,000 fund he had asked for the State Department and its foreign service operations for the fiscal year starting July 1.
The President will end his work-and-leave trip to Georgia tomorrow and return to Washington. The administration has decided to seek restoration of "the great majority" of the cut. Eisenhower's headquarters announced after he discussed the matter by telephone with Secretary of State Dulles.
The Cabinet officer is to go before the Senate Appropriations Committee tomorrow to outline his views; and the President's — and to urge that the Senate refuse to go along with the House reduction.
Eisenhower is taking a personal hand in the effort by helping with preparation of Dulles' statement. After the Eisenhower-Dulles phone conference, White House press secretary James C. Hagerty told newsmen.
"The President and the secretary believe that the cuts made by the House in the State Department's budget are harmful to the United States in the conduct of foreign affairs."

his politics as well as his industry's own outlook. It keeps the hotels in Washington filled with the oil inquiry is sparked by reports that importers plan to bring in around 1 million barrels a day, equal to some 17 per cent of domestic output. The government has felt that 10 per cent is a better figure.
Opponents of increased imports told that they would discourage search for new reserves which might be essential to national security some day. Oil importers stress that using foreign oil would conserve our own resources — and also they can produce oil more cheaply overseas.
Last year the United States imported 834,000 barrels a day, compared to 236,000 barrels in 1949. Domestic production rose to 7,131,000 barrels a day in 1956, compared with 4,751,000 ten years earlier.
Venezuela furnishes us with the most followed by the Middle East and Canada.
The case of metals is different in many respects. The government actually piled up stocks of these defense essentials in its warehouses. Then in mid-1954 when the prices of zinc and lead were weak, and output falling off, the government stepped up purchases with the allowed aim of bolstering these industries so that they would be strong if needed in some future emergency.
Original goals were reported to be 200,000 tons of zinc and 200,000 tons of lead. Government purchases have held an effective floor under the prices of these metals for months.
Now a Department of Interior official warns that the domestic zinc buying program "is due to end in a matter of months." Last year the government bought about 15 per cent of the metal on the overstocked market.
A U. S. Bureau of Mines official adds that world production of both metals seems sure to top consumption this year. The General Services Administration says it has already cut back a file on purchases of both lead and zinc. And the Office of Defense Mobilization reveals that the government is supposed buying in for the stockpile some time ago.

Arkansan to Get Chance in Union Probe

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate rack-ets probes called a special public hearing today to let an Arkansas manufacturer explain his alleged payoffs to two union officials.
Earl P. Betendorf of Texarkana, Ark., who operates a warehouse pallet manufacturing plant at Ashdown, Ark., demanded and got the special hearing to explain what he said were forged payments. He contended the com-

120 Below at South Pole Is Expected

WASHINGTON — The first men to spend the winter at the South Pole expect the thermometer to drop to 120 below zero at mid-season, the Navy said today.

This would be 30 degrees colder than anyone else has ever experienced, Navy weather experts said.

The world record for cold in which men have lived is 90 below, recorded in northeastern Siberia in February 1933. The 18 Americans at the South Pole within a degree of that mark April 2, when they reported by radio a low of minus 89.

Winter comes in the Antarctic when summer comes in the Northern Hemisphere.

Altogether, 338 U. S. scientists and military men are spending the polar winter at seven Operation Deep Freeze outposts, scattered over distances of hundreds of miles.

A sampling of the reports they send back:

Little America — Lt. J. G. Robert J. Adams, Memphis, reported that an attempt to hatch chicks for Easter had failed. Candling of six New Zealand eggs selected for incubation showed "no growth."

Byrd Station — Scientists were "astonished" to discover that ice in the area extended to a depth of 7,600 to 9,750 feet. They believe that all this ice rests on land.

Ellsworth Station — Navy cook Edward H. Davis, Clinton, Iowa, said the men are eating 1 1/2 times their normal amount of food — mostly proteins, consumption of which is at twice the rate for a corresponding stateside naval base.

Vols, Barons Split a Doubleheader

NASHVILLE, Tenn. April 28 — Nashville and Birmingham split a double-header with lopsided the opener 15-4 and Birmingham the nightcap 9-2.

In the first game George Schmees hit a grand slam homer in the first inning. The Vols piled up all 15 of their runs in the first four innings.

Birmingham also started its victory drive off with a first-in-

THE STORY: Officials say the investigation of the strange death of Anna Maria Pericoloso, supposedly accidentally drowned, is closed. Milo, March, who is in Rome working on the case for an international insurance company, thinks she was murdered. He is now talking to Piero Rocca, a police detective who worked on the case. Piero also thinks the girl met with foul play.

CHAPTER VI

"There are men like him in every country."

"True. Gambero has all sorts of friends. Giuseppe Formaggio, the head of Italian police, owes his life to Gambero. The Italian police are part of the Ministry of Interior. The present Minister of the Interior is Silvano Balena, who also owes his life to Gambero. They are friends. Gambero is also a good friend of the Minister's son, Riccardo Balena. The young man is wild. He gambles, he drinks, he is interested only in jazz music, money, and what he considers good times. For a time he was the constant escort of Anna Maria Pericoloso. He escorted her to parties. A Gambero's ease near Tor Valanica."

"Interesting," I said.

He nodded. "Here is one more fact. On the morning of the third day after the death of the girl, Gambero drove into Rome. With him were Riccardo Balena and an actress named Giana Bionda, who is said to have succeeded Anna Maria in the affections of young Balena. The young man and the girl sat in the car while Gambero went into the Ministry and visited with the senior Balena and Giuseppe Formaggio. That afternoon, the case of Anna Maria Pericoloso was officially closed."

"Is Gambero also a friend of Johnny Fornessi?" I asked.

"Oh, yes. Now, I have given you facts, and we come to rumors. It is said that Gambero also makes a practice of going in business with the sons of important men. Any business. It is said that Gambero is a secret partner of Johnny Fornessi in drugs and that the country estate is the seat of operations. No evidence has ever been secured. It is whispered that Riccardo Balena had a date with Anna Maria that night before she died and that there was a party at the estate. It is said that the girl knew too much. Something should be done — but most carefully."

"Meaning what?"

"Milo," he said seriously, "this is not only the matter of the life of a young girl, although that is enough reason to be aroused. There is much in this that is explosive. Whispers in Rome cannot be controlled. Soon they will find their way into print. The Communists will grab them. The Socialists will grab them. So will the Monarchists and the Movement to Social Italian. It could be the end of Italian democracy."

"You're giving me a big load," I told him.

Once more he shrugged. "In the meantime, I will give you what little help I can. I have the name of a man you can see this afternoon. I think he can tell you many things. He is a professional informer, although not too many know this. His information is for sale, but not for money only. If he does not feel that he is dealing with a man of courage, he will

I nodded.

"His name is Attilio Coniglio. There is a little winery called Martello on Via Maria Cristina, near the river. Attilio will be there within the half hour. He goes there every day. Tell him that I sent you to him."

"Right," I said.

"Tonight," he said, "I will come to your hotel. We will have dinner together and I think I can show you some of the people involved. I cannot arrange for you to meet them — although perhaps I can in the case. But you should know what they look like."

"Okay. I'll see you tonight."

"Good. He stood up. "The coffee is on my bill, so don't worry about the account. Good luck."

"I'll need it," I murmured as he left. I waited a few minutes, lighting a cigarette, and thinking about the case. I couldn't really complain that nothing had happened since I landed in Rome a few hours earlier. Finally, I got up and left.

There was a taxi parked a couple of doors from the cafe. I walked over to it and opened the door. Only then did I become aware that somebody was sitting in the back seat.

"Don't rush it, Milo," a familiar voice said. "I've been waiting for you. I feel it ain't nice for me to let a fellow American run around without anybody to show him the sights. Get in."

It was Johnny Fornessi. The gun in his hand was held loosely, but still it pointed at me.

I didn't want to be impolite, so I got into the cab and sat next to him. The cab started up at once. I couldn't see anything of the driver except the back of his head. I turned to look at Johnny.

Johnny Fornessi had always sug-

CHAPTER VII

He started telling me what buildings we were passing. It was so fascinating hearing this New York gangster reeling off the facts about the Giuseppe Mazzini Monument and the Cloaca Massima that for several minutes I listened in stead of trying to figure what was going on.

"Johnny, you surprise me," I said finally. "You've got all the patter down."

"Yeah," he said. "When I first came back to this joint, it took me a while to make any connections. I saw every part of this town maybe 15 or 20 times."

"What about the prisons?"

"Not Johnny Fornessi," he said and his old arrogance was back in his voice.

"I guess sight-seeing isn't a problem now," I said. "I hear you've got good connections. Like Gambero."

"I got connections," Johnny Fornessi said.

"Is that why you're interested in the Pericoloso girl, Johnny?" Or did you kill her?"

"Never heard of her," he said. He went back to telling me the sights and brushed off any other attempts on my part to start a conversation.

"We crossed the river and swung over past Vatican City, then by a lot of palaces. We crossed the river again. I glanced at my watch and saw that we'd been riding around for an hour. Johnny must have noticed the time then, too, for he suddenly dropped the chatter."

"All right, Milo," he said. "You want us to take you back to your hotel?"

"You mean it's over?" I asked. "Just as I was beginning to enjoy it, too. I was even looking forward to a guided tour of Baron Gambero's country estate. I hear the air is very stimulating there."

"Don't be a wise guy," he snapped. "Where do you want to go?"

I still wanted to go the wine-shop. I knew it was near the river and we had just crossed the river. "Make it right here," I said. He looked surprised. "What's right here?"

"A good place to leave you. You know the Johnny. Besides, after riding with you for an hour, I'm not sure you've had a bath recently."

His face darkened with anger. He rapped out one word at the driver and the cab swerved to the curb.

"Just one thing, Milo," he said as I started to get out. "I know you. You're a pretty tough guy, but you were trying to play in the wrong league. It's too fast for you. Play it smart and take the next plane back to the States."

"And miss the chance to meet a real live baron," I said, wide-eyed. "How could I go back and face the boys in the poolroom if I did that?"

"Okay," he said. "Just remember I tried to warn you."

I stood on the sidewalk until they'd driven out of sight. Then I hailed a cab and told the driver to take me to the Martello winery on Via Maria Cristina.

The cab pulled up in front of a little cellar place with a picture of a hammer in front of it. I paid the driver and got out. There was a car parked in front, but I didn't pay any attention. I walked down a short flight of steps to the front door. That was as far as I got.

A uniformed policeman stood there, barring my way.

"The winery is not open now," he announced.

"Why not?" I asked.

"There has been a murder, signore."

I guess I started getting it then, even before he told me. "Who was killed?"

He shrugged. "Some informant. He was stabbed in the throat as he sat drinking wine."

"And the murderer?" I asked tightly.

"Nobody saw the crime and the murderer was gone before we were called. But the police will get him, signore, you may be sure of that."

"Yeah," I said. I turned and walked up to the sidewalk. Now I knew why Johnny had taken me sight-seeing.

There were messages at the desk that Signor Manzo had phoned twice and Signor Marrone had called twice. I couldn't remember knowing anyone named Marrone. I went up to my room. Part of the bottle of brandy was still there. I had them send up some ice. Then I had two stiff drinks and felt a little better. I picked up the phone and called police headquarters. I asked for Piero Rocca. Somebody answered but it didn't sound like him. I asked for him again.

"Who is calling?" the man asked.

"His Uncle Umberto," I snapped.

Finally he came on the phone. "This your Uncle Umberto from Brooklyn," I said. "I hope your line isn't tapped."

"No," he said.

"You know about the killing?"

"Yes."

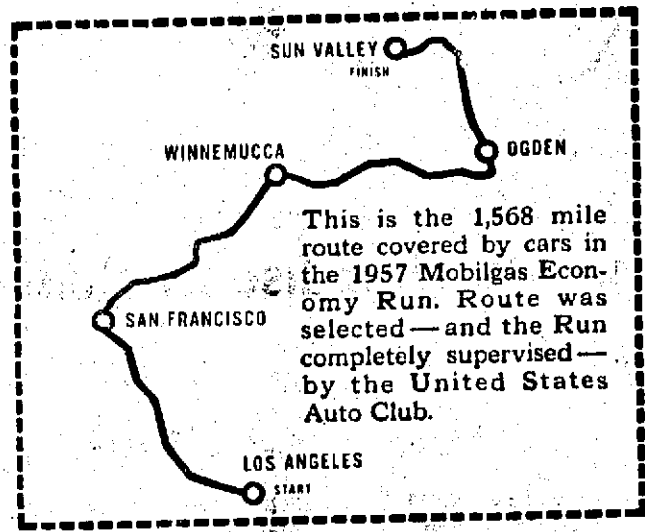

"I was kept away for an hour by an old friend, Johnny Fornessi. I'm sure there's no point in charging him. He probably has 14 alibis. But if I were the police I'd check him and that little pal of his, Lucky Topo. You won't find anything."

"You're probably right."

Top power and mileage of New Mobilgas Special—

Proved in 1957 Mobilgas Economy Run

This is the 1,568 mile route covered by cars in the 1957 Mobilgas Economy Run. Route was selected—and the Run completely supervised—by the United States Auto Club.

New 1957 cars averaged:

20.48 miles per gallon!

WINNERS BOX SCORE OF THE RUN
Sweepstakes Winner *
Imperial Crown	64.5153	20.9465
Class Winners
Low Price: Plymouth Belvedere	52.6211	21.3907
Low Medium Price: Dodge Coronet 500	55.8920	22.0047
Upper Medium Price: Chrysler Saratoga	56.7267	20.7032
High Price: Imperial Crown	64.5153	20.9465
*The Sweepstakes Winner is chosen on the basis of highest ten miles per gallon.
Ten-miles per gallon is obtained as follows: Gross weight multiplied by total miles traveled divided by gallons of gasoline consumed. This method is used—rather than miles per gallon, which would favor the lightest cars—to give all entrants an equal chance to win, regardless of weight.

That's the amazing mileage averaged by the cars in this year's Mobilgas Economy Run!

These were brand-new 1957 stock cars with automatic transmissions—no different from the one you, yourself, may now be driving. And the punishing course they covered included city traffic as well as open road—steep mountain grades—desert heat and freezing cold...every extreme of driving conditions your car is likely to encounter in a full year!

What better proof that you, too, can get top power and mileage economy from your 1957 high-compression car? Just follow the example of the Mobilgas Economy Run drivers...keep your car in good condition, drive sensibly, use New Mobilgas Special—powered with new top octane and gas-saving MC4 additives.

Try New Mobilgas Special—for improved year-round performance that adds up to more miles per gallon!

Long Ballet Is Coming on the 'Showcase'

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Ninety minutes of ballet is coming to television tonight.

"Producers' Showcase" (NBC-TV) will present the Royal Ballet, formerly called The Sadler's Wells Ballet, in a performance of "Cinderella." Frederick Ashton's ballet to music by Serge Prokofiev. Accompanying of 65 has been flown here from London for the performance.

Last season "Producers' Showcase" presented the same company in "The Sleeping Beauty." That ballet was happily received by a huge viewing audience rather to the surprise of NBC.

Clark Jones, director for television of "Cinderella," says that F. Spears, Mrs. Burke Shelton, Mrs. Fred White, Mrs. P. A. Es-carre, Mrs. W. F. Ligon, Mrs. Floyd Wren and Mrs. Charles Thomas attended a W. S. C. S. District meeting and seminar on Wednesday in McCaskill.

Dr. Charles Hesterly attended the State Medical Convention that convened in Little Rock last week.

Mrs. Clara Wichard and Miss Betty Wichard returned to Little Rock Wednesday having been called here due to the illness and death of Mrs. McMahan.

Mrs. Dale Wilson has returned from an extended visit with her daughter, Mrs. R. B. Magee and Mrs. Magee in San Antonio, Texas.

Kazan Gives Answers on His Movies

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The thing about Eliza Kazan—ask a question and you get an answer. The director was in town briefly to get his new film, "Face in the Crowd," okayed by the Jostition office. Just a few minor cuts, which I agreed with; I've never had any trouble with them," he said.

I nabbed him at the Beverly Hills Hotel for some direct questions. Why has he been using new-stand it, even though he never has been ballet before? He said, on the stage the ballet is not obligated to do this because it assumes that everyone already knows the story well.

"Another problem is the change of space—from a wide lateral stage space to television space. Instead of thinking of the wide stage of the theater television must think in terms of a triangle with the camera at the apex.

In this way, for example, two lines of six dancers each on the stage is changed to three lines of four dancers each.

"Television can put the ballet in different areas with different effects. If we tried to duplicate the stage, it wouldn't be television. With special effects, lighting and electronics and the like, it gives a special sense of magic."

The ballet "Cinderella" follows the story line of the fairy tale. It will be interesting to compare tonight's performance of the old story with that of the recent "Cinderella" told on television in a different form—the musical.

SUNDAY SCHOOLER—Cola G. Parker, chairman of the board of the National Association of Manufacturers, is national chairman of the 13th annual all-faiths National Sunday School Week, April 8 through 14. It is sponsored by Laymen's National Committee.

each of the three acts will be introduced by less than a minute of commentary. Each act of "The Sleeping Beauty" was introduced with a simple little action intended to instruct viewers not well informed on ballet.

"In doing away with that this year," he said, "we're bowing to public preference. The public reaction was that it's unnecessary. There are some unusual problems connected with staging ballet for television.

"There's an obligation on television to tell the story of a ballet clearly so that everyone can un-

TELEPHONE BABY—Something new in obstetrics was introduced at the Georgia Baptist Hospital in Atlanta when Nurse Marie Jones, right, by telephone, aided Mrs. Jackie Hill in delivering her own baby. Mother of three others, Mrs. Hill went into labor at home, realized she could never make it to the hospital. So she called up, got Miss Jones, who calmly gave her instructions as the child was born. Mother and her new daughter were later brought to the hospital.

corners in his films? Because I won't pay ridiculous prices for actors. My first choice for "Face in the Crowd" wanted to have his company own a third of the picture and be paid $150,000 besides. I told him to forget it.

"No star is worth that much." Does his signing of actors like Andy Griffith, Tony Franciosa and Rip Torn mean he plans to hold onto the stars he creates?

"No, I have no desire to build up a stable." Didn't he pay Marlon Brando a bundle for "On Waterfront"? "Brando got $125,000, and I didn't pay it; it wasn't my company. My first choice for the role was Paul Newman, who was an unknown at the time.

"I like using unknowns. When I brought Jimmy Dean out here for 'East of Eden,' nobody knew him from his stand-in. He was perfect for the role.

"The studio wanted me to use

Atom Used to Combat Cancer

By RENNIE TAYLOR
AP Science Reporter
LOS ANGELES (AP)—Hopeful results in the treatment of deep cancer with a small atom smasher were reported today by a Stanford University radiologist.

All traces of malignancy in 48 out of 74 patients treated in a little more than a year have disappeared. Dr. Dr. Malcolm A. Bagshaw told the California Medical Assn. It is far too early to call these results cures, because the cancer could reappear. Five to ten years free of the disease would constitute what doctors call a cure.

The initial apparent successes included a child 22 months old with cancer of the eye, one of the most common forms of malignancy in the very young. A second child with this disease also is being treated with some indications of favorable results, Dr. Bagshaw said.

Bill Holden. Bill's a great guy, but he couldn't play boy of 20, which was what we needed."

Now that the fuss is over, did he have any regrets about "Baby Doll"?

"None, except certain things about the story I might have done differently."

Did the furor over "Baby Doll" upset him?

"Not particularly," he said. "I was mad at Cardinal Spellman for saying it was un-American and sending people into the theater expecting to see a dirty picture. But it's only certain figures in the church hat were against me, not the Catholics. I have no beef with them."

News From State Capitol

Capital News Bureau

LITTLE ROCK (Special). A year hence the ticket for the Democratic primaries will be closing, with chief interest in the lineup for governor. Much that happens in the meantime, especially with respect to the three percent sales tax referendum petition, will have a bearing on the development.

This much can be said with certainty today. Big, friendly Chris Finkbeiner, who with his brothers operates the Little Rock Packing Co. is running. He came near doing that in 1956, but a matter of minutes before the deadline he announced he would not make the race against Gov. Orval E. Faubus, then seeking his second term.

Finkbeiner is the type of candidate seasoned politicians don't know how to pre-figure. He will be a favorite with many business men and with sportsmen who have made his personal or television acquaintance through his participation in or sponsorship of many events that brought him in contact with the public.

Another who seems a likely, though not as yet like Finkbeiner, is a certain starter is former Gov. Sidney McMath. He won't file if the decision is to put up Faubus for a third term try, an idea that is being fomented by obviously planted letters published in newspapers. Veteran observers predict that it will be McMath, who they say still rates higher with labor leaders, Negro politicians and rural electric co-op officers than does Faubus.

McMath still has his eyes on Senator John L. McClellan's seat, which he bid for unsuccessfully in 1954. If he could make his next pitch from the governor's office in 1960, his chances might be enhanced. Organized labor contributed handsomely to his 1954 campaign and, now that Senator McClellan has dealt such damaging blows to labor leadership through the investigation by the special committee he heads, unions' political committees might be even more interested in contributing to McMath. raes himself, he must be counsh- Until Governor Faubus eliminates himself, he must be counted a potential aspirant but he and McMath will not be rival candidates. Not only was Faubus a McMath appointee in one spot, or another throughout the McMath campaign, he has also placed many ex-McMath administrationists in key positions.

Those or close to the McMath-Faubus organization who would prefer to support a fresh candidate are keeping the names of John R. Thompson, Public Service Commission member; Fred Pickens, Newport lawyer; Orville Cheney, revenue commissioner, and others in the discussions.

All through the recent legislature, Senators James P. Baker Jr. of West Helena and Marvin Melton were conceded to have gubernatorial thoughts in their minds. Neither attempted to build a record as an anti-administration legislator. In fact, about the only Assembly member who might be said to have done that was Rep. Hardy Croxon of Rogers, Benton County. On that account, he has received some mention as a possible aspirant to succeed Faubus.

Croxon repeatedly protested against Public Service Commission policies which he said had raised gas prices far beyond schedules that would produce a fair return to the stockholders. At adjournment, he apparently had every intention of continuing to needle the administration about utility rates and profits.

This stamped him as one whom W. R. Stephens, Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co. Board chairman, would go far to thwart in any statewide campaign.

State Capital Bureau
LITTLE ROCK, April 24 (Special)—This column has to do with "resolutions" as distinguished from "bills" which received the attention of the General Assembly in its regular and special sessions of 1957.

A "bill" if passed becomes an act governing the conduct of those directly affected by it. A "resolution" is nothing more generally than an expression of opinion or sentiment on the part of legislators. An exception must be made with respect to joint resolutions proposing constitutional amendments each two years. This requires a roll call just as the vote on each bill must be by roll call. Other types of resolutions may be adopted on voice vote, or by a show of hands, but if enough members request, a roll call can be had.

"Joint" and "concurrent" resolutions must be adopted in both houses before they are sent to the governor and eventually to the secretary of state for filing. Simple resolutions are subject to

You Eat Well When You Become a Star

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (M)—"It's a great dish spaghetti I know—I lived on it once for six weeks."

So says Canadian born, English trained, American-discovered Patricia Owens, an actress with the prettiest, brownest eyes you ever saw. She's one of Hollywood's brightest star prospects today, but there were times when her career was going nowhere.

"I was living in a London flat with another girl," Patricia recalled. "Neither of us was getting acting jobs and our money was getting pretty low."

"We managed to get by with spaghetti for every dinner. It was very practical; it was cheap and it could be stretched to last from one night to the next."

"I can't face a plate of it now, but perhaps in 10 years I'll start eating it again."

Patricia was born in British Columbia. Her English parents returned to England when she was and she went to school there, starting in repertory at an early age. Despite her British schooling, her Canadian accent hung on.

"I was always losing acting jobs because they said I sounded too American," she remembered.

Rave reviews in a West End play won her a contract with J. Arthur Rank and she thought she had arrived. But the Rank fortunes were on the skids at the time and she languished under contract without a picture for a year.

Back on the stage, she again attracted good notices, and soon she became queen of the British B's, potboiler movies that weren't exported to this country.

Her big break came when she did the first dramatic show on the new English commercial TV station, Twentieth Century-Fox officials saw her, tested her, signed her. In quick succession she has been assigned to big roles in "Island in the Sun," "Sayonara" and "Down Payment."

Pine Bluff Okays Hospital Bonds

PINE BLUFF (M)—Jefferson County voters have approved a proposed $2,700,000 bond issue to help pay for construction of a hospital here.

Also approved at an election yesterday was an unspecified tax levy to finance the bond issue.

With 22 of the county's 27 precincts reported, vote on the bond issue was 1,445 for and 516 against. The vote on the tax levy, which is not expected to exceed three mills, was 1,314 for and 626 against.

An election official said the five unreported boxes are not large enough to alter the outcome of the vote.

The 234-bed hospital would be constructed largely with federal Hill-Burton funds with the city and county providing one-third of the amount.

action only in the house were introduced.

A governor could not veto a joint resolution for submission of a constitutional amendment to be submitted at the next biennial general election if he wanted to. The Assembly is the sole judge of what shall go on the ballot. Action by the governor on other resolutions is meaningless, other than to indicate his personal attitude.

More often than not, governors "approved" concurrent resolutions as a matter of routine before forwarding them to the secretary of state who occasionally finds one suitable for inclusion in the official volume of acts. Most such resolutions are filed away and forgotten.

Governor Faubus approved by signing most of the concurrent resolutions that the legislature cleared this year, but he disapproved one, SCR 18, by Senator Robert Harvey of Swifton in which the Assembly "thereby expresses its intention and policy the University of Arkansas School of Medicine should accept patients who are able to pay for medical care in the Medical Center Hospital."

The chief executive did not take a stand on two that had precipitated heated argument. One of these was SCR 2 of the special session that called for the resignation of John C. Sheffield of Helena as chairman of the State Publicity and Parks Commission. A Faubus appointee, Sheffield had criticized the legislature for making a special session necessary.

The other was HCR 30, adopted at the regular session, sponsored by the organization known as the Campaign for the 48 States.

HCR 30 memorializes Congress to submit to the states for ratification or rejection, the following proposed amendments to the Constitution of the United States:

The Byrd-Bridges Amendment to require an annually balanced budget.

The Reed-Dirksen Amendment to place a ceiling on federal income taxes, except that Congress by a 3-4ths vote could exceed the maximum; also the Amendment would leave states with the sole right to tax inheritance and gifts.

The Mundt-Coudert Amendment to provide for choosing presidential electors by congressional districts plus two at large in each state.

The Reed-Walter Amendment to permit amendment of the federal Constitution by 48 states without congressional intervention.

The Bricker Amendment to prevent overriding of the Constitution and domestic laws by treaties.
